B. DELEGATIONS

1. Refugees & Indigenous Youth Cross-Cultural Dialogue Project (FRAFCA and Local Immigration Partnership)

Jennifer Basu, Surrey Local Immigration Partnership (LIP) and Jeska Slater, Fraser Region Aboriginal Friendship Centre Association (FRAFCA).

Youth Leaders from the LIP Refugee and FRAFCA Youth Committees shared their experience from a series of dialogue events that brought together Indigenous and refugee youth. The events explored issues such as racism, displacement and colonization. The delegation noted it is important to build relationships and participants found that many of them shared similar experiences with displacement from traditional lands.

At a day-long retreat at the Kwantlen First Nation Cultural Building hosted by Chief Marilyn Gabriel and her family, one of the activities was the KAIROS Blanket Exercise. Blankets were laid on the floor and used to represent lands belonging to Indigenous people prior to contact. As the game goes on, blankets become smaller representing colonization. Two refugee youth and two Indigenous youth were called upon to witness the day and recount their experiences. The day was very emotional for the participants.

The Committee thanked the youth for leading this project and staff advised that Community Foundations of Canada and Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada provided the funding for the project.

A video regarding Refugees & Indigenous Youth Cross-Cultural Dialogue Project was presented.

2. Surrey Child Care Report

The delegation provided a Power-Point presentation on the Surrey Child Care Report and highlighted the following information:

- The Surrey Community Child Care Taskforce is actively seeking stakeholder commitment that will enhance, expand and support the long-term sustainability of a community planned continuum of high quality, accessible, affordable, comprehensive child care services for Surrey families with children up to 12 years of age. The Report focuses on a mandate, principles and priorities.
- Challenges for child care in Surrey include expensive childcare: shortages in spaces for infants, toddlers and school aged care; shortage of qualified early childhood educators (ECE); limited local ECE training; limited spaces for children with special needs; and desperate parents enrolling their children in unlicensed childcare operations.
- The report highlighted five priority areas: operating capacity; capital infrastructure; talent development and labour supply; accessibility and equity; and integration and coordination.

The Committee discussed the lack of child care resources in so many communities. Non-profit organizations tend to have waitlists, and parents join any child care centers with availability. The Committee suggested an in-depth analysis be conducted to determine what of what would be required for non-profit centers to expand their services.
