The delegation provided a PowerPoint overview of the Surrey White Rock Integrated Youth Collaborative (SWRIYC) and its goals for youth and their families to access critically needed services and highlighted the following information:

- The SWRIYC is a multi-partner table that was created to develop a network of like-minded people and community allies with a primary focus to establish easy access for youth and their families to integrated and coordinated services. table with multiple partners, including the City of Surrey. Services include mental health and substance use, primary health care, counselling, life skills development, housing and LGBTQ2+ friendly services.
- The SWRIYC is currently preparing for a Foundry proposal call. A Foundry is a comprehensive, integrated service centre for youth aged 12-24. As a space where service provides are brought together, a Foundry operates with a "no wrong door" policy. Surrey is currently the largest city in BC that does not have a Foundry.
- A Surrey/White Rock Foundry will have specific service considerations to address, such as the large geographic area, the complex service system for youth mental health, the current reorganization of primary care and the significant populations of Indigenous and newcomer youth. To address some of these issues, the SWRIYC is considering submitting two Foundry applications, as well as implementing a mobile service unit.
