B. DELEGATIONS1. Kristen Lassonde, Planner

Kristen Lassonde, Planner, provided an overview of the Semiahmoo Town Centre (STC) Plan and highlighted the following information:

- Specific consultation was conducted with the Semiahmoo First Nation and the STC Plan has incorporated reconciliation where possible. Examples include:
 - Land acknowledgment;
 - Providing First Nations context;
 - Differentiating between the "Semiahma" people and "Semiahmoo" the location;
 - A timeline of the area from the First Nation perspective;
 - Addressing specific Semiahmoo First Nation issues, notably stormwater management in Semiahmoo Bay and First Nations public art and Semiahma artists.
- The STC Plan was endorsed by Council at the January 31, 2022, Regular Council – Public Hearing meeting. The Plan includes the vision, land use, urban design concept, parks and transportation networks and engineering servicing strategy, as well as a financing and implementation strategy.
- The planning principles are based on seven community values that were created with community input: improve connectivity, focus density to key locations, encourage a Medical District, provide a range of housing types, enhance local shops, services and businesses, create more community spaces and recognize established neighbourhoods. The Plan also includes three smart growth objectives: accommodate growth sustainability, foster inclusivity and encourage multi-modal travel.
- The Parks and Open Space Strategy for the Plan includes four new parks, with two near parks in the north, one in the south and one on the Semiahmoo Mall site, as well as the extension of the Semiahmoo Trail southwards into the town centre.
- The Building Height Strategy was created in response to residents' requests for additional assurances regarding buildings heights and was derived through community engagement. The Building Height Strategy is site specific, with the highest structures permitted at the 152 Street and 16 Avenue intersection and transitioning down from that location to the more established low-rise context.

- The Transportation Strategy is centered on rapid bus service along 152 Street and will provide new local and collector roads for better connectivity, lanes and greenways for commercial servicing and parkade entrances in commercial areas and protected cycling infrastructure. The Plan also includes provisions for long-term plans for a higher level of rapid transit, as TransLink's Transport 2050 has designated 152 Street, 16 Avenue and 24 Avenue for future rapid transit. These road cross sections have been designed to accommodate future rapid transit.
- A pedestrian main street along 16A Avenue will connect the White Rock exchange area with the STC and can be used for commercial space, patios for restaurants and cafes and special events.
- The STC Plan outlines nine plazas that have been designated for important commercial corners and proximity to bus stations along 152 Street.
- The Medical District includes a mix of housing and development types.
- The Community Amenity Contribution (CAC) schedule includes an Arts and Culture CAC that will support an arts presentation centre and art studio, as outlined in the Parks, Recreation & Culture Strategic Plan. The STC Plan does not require area specific Development Cost Charges (DCC), as the majority of infrastructure is already in place. City-wide DCC will be applied to bring existing infrastructure up to current standards.

In response to questions from the Commission, Ms. Lassonde provided the following information:

- Land use plans have some limitations in how impactful some consultation can be.
- Staff worked with the City of White Rock throughout the STC Plan process, especially on the cross-section for 16 Avenue. Staff also considered existing building heights in White Rock when developing the Building Heights Strategy.
- All new developments will be required to provide underground parking at city-wide rates. Parking requirements may change if a higher level of rapid transit is implemented in the area.
- Indigenous naming opportunities have been reinforced in the Plan. Coast Salish names will be prioritized for public spaces.

2. Kelsey Baglo, Heritage Planner, Ryan Gallagher, Manager of Culture, and Kristen Tiede, Traffic Engineer

Kelsey Baglo, Heritage Planner, Ryan Gallagher, Manager of Culture, and Kristen Tiede, Traffic Engineer provided an overview of Heritage Planning and Heritage Services and Interpretation and highlighted the following information:

Engineering

- Engineering's purvey is road allowance, which is the land set aside for roads including ditches, sidewalks, boulevards, underground utilities and more. Engineering-related assets can be divided into three categories: heritage roads and trails, assets on road allowances on the Heritage Register, and other transportation related heritage assets.
- The primary purpose of street naming is to promote wayfinding while secondary purposes can include celebrating the history of the city or commemorating an individual, group or organization significant to Surrey. The Street Naming Policy was expanded in 2015 to provide additional options and guidance for heritage road markers and geographic features, other secondary names such as commemorative street names and district signage, and official street names.

The Commission noted that most street names are currently predominantly male. Moving forward, it is important for street names to be more representative. The Commission suggested that the City could consider implementing street signs in Punjabi, similar to how the City of Delta has done along Scott Road.

Ms. Tiede advised that she can report back regarding the street naming criteria.

Planning & Development

- Planning & Development has moved to values-based heritage conservation and considers heritage to be whatever a community, past or present, values and would like to pass onto the future, regardless of age or vintage.
- Heritage planning is undertaken by the provisions in the Local Government Act, which provides tools for recognition and protection of historical places and allows municipalities to undertake planning actions such as the creation of a Heritage Register and Heritage Advisory Commission. Permanent protection measures include Heritage Revitalization Agreement (HRA) By-law, Heritage Designation By-law and Heritage Conservation Covenant. Heritage Planning also utilizes the Heritage Inventory, which is an internal list of properties that may have heritage value but require further evaluation by a heritage professional.
- Broadly, Heritage Planning addresses Development Applications, Building Permit Applications, Demolition Permit Applications related to heritage properties, maintenance of the Heritage Register, temporary and permanent protection tools, Building Preservation Program Grants and heritage policy.

In response to questions from the Commission, Ms. Baglo provided the following information:

- If a heritage protected property is demolished, an "as-found" report with photos, archival information, maps and surveys for the property is compiled and forwarded to Surrey Archives.
- Properties on the Heritage Register will have a heritage evaluation and potentially a Statement of Significance. Staff will work with Surrey Archives to compile information for a property on the Heritage Inventory and would request that a developer have the property evaluated by a heritage professional as part of the development application process. In addition, the newly updated Demolition Permit Process requires applicants to submit photos of the four elevations of the property.
- Properties are constantly being added to the Heritage Inventory and Heritage Register. Properties can be added to the Heritage Register without the owner's consent (although consent is always preferred) and the City is required to notify a property owner within 30 days if their property has been added or removed from the list.

Parks, Recreation & Culture

- Surrey's heritage facilities include the Museum of Surrey, Historic Stewart Farm and Surrey Archives. These facilities host gatherings and preserve and share community stories.
- Online heritage tools include the Surrey Archives and Museum online access tool, 1949 aerial photo layer in Cosmos, Surrey Time Lapse and the Arts and Culture Map.
- The heritage interpretation programs spread awareness of Surrey's heritage features. There are approximately 50 features city-wide, including storyboards and cairns.

1. PLANNING & DEVELOPMENT

(a) Anderson Cabin Update File: N/A (Verbal Update)

Kelsey Baglo, Heritage Planner, provided the following update regarding the Anderson Cabin:

- The Anderson Cabin is located at the Museum of Surrey Heritage Campus and is protected by a Heritage Revitalization Agreement By-law.

- A rear window and shutter were recently damaged. The conservation plan does list the window as a character defining element. Upon further review of historical photos, the shutters were not original features, and a heritage professional has advised that the window opening was also not likely an original feature.
- The window opening will be sealed for security but the feature will not be replaced.

In response to a question from the Commission, Ms. Baglo advised that Museum staff will review the security footage to determine what caused the window to break.

(b) Identification of Potential Heritage Resources in Surrey

File: N/A (Verbal Update)

Kelsey Baglo, Heritage Planner, advised that to help broaden the heritage portfolio and fill gaps, an online suggestion box will be implemented that will allow the community to identify and recommend potential heritage resources in Surrey.
